

Amsterdam

The University of Manchester links with the Erasmus+ programme which offers exciting opportunities for UK participants to study, work, volunteer, teach and train abroad in Europe, including cities such as Amsterdam. It is aimed at students, trainees, apprentices, pupils, adult learners, young people, volunteers, professors, teachers, trainers, youth workers and professionals of organisations active in the education, training and youth sector.

Taking part in the programme helps you to develop personally and professionally; you will gain valuable international experience, broaden your horizons, experience new cultures and discover new ways of working. Erasmus+ is of particular benefit to young people who can learn new skills to improve their employability, acquire life skills, and develop their confidence.

To find out more about the Erasmus+ programme, see here.

How does the University of Manchester specifically engage with the Programme?

The University of Manchester mostly focuses on the funding for student mobility. For example, "Erasmus+ supports higher education students to study abroad for up to one year in another European university or to gain valuable international work experience in a European organisation." Between 350 - 450 placements are undertaken across Europe through the Erasmus+ Programme by University of Manchester students each academic year enhancing their language skills, intercultural competence, and international understanding.

What about Amsterdam in particular?

The University of Amsterdam is an overseas University which many of our students visit and study at every year.

Why not visit our 'Manchester on the Road' website to see blogs by our very own students who are currently studying in the Netherlands and Amsterdam itself.

A special case study will be coming soon...
