The Whitworth announces first UK exhibition from the M+ Sigg Collection – Four Decades of Chinese Art

Exhibition Dates: 1 July – 20 September 2015
Press Preview: 30 June 2015

The Whitworth announced today that Four Decades of Chinese Art will be the next major exhibition in their newly renovated exhibition spaces. The exhibition will be the first UK show curated from the renowned M+ Sigg Collection. It brings together 80 significant works by leading contemporary Chinese artists including Ai Weiwei, Cao Fei and Zhang Peili, to examine how art can question, challenge and stimulate.

Spanning forty years, it will explore questions concerning the conditions for artistic practice, freedom of expression and the freedom of art by taking visitors on a journey through the subversive practice of artists including the 'No Name Group', via events on Tiananmen Square in 1989 and ending with the incredibly vibrant art scene of today. Highlights include Family Tree (2000) by Zhang Huan, one of the most influential and provocative contemporary artists working today. This photographic work is the result of a single day's performance where nine calligraphy painters took turns to write lyrics about the artist's family history on his face. Weng Fen's On the Wall series (2002) captures China in the throes of rapid urbanisation in the early 2000s. Often featuring adolescents sat on a wall, these extraordinary photographs present the personal transition that mirrors China's own economic, political and social change.

The Whitworth will also exhibit Ai Weiwei's installation, Still Life (1995-2000). This mass-display of thousands of Stone Age axe heads is an iconoclastic gesture made to offset the value and importance of the ancient object.

Other exhibition artists include: Cao Fei, Chi Xiaoning, Feng Guodong, Geng Jianyi, Hai Bo, Huang Rui, Huang Yong Ping, Kan Xuan, Liang Yuanwei, Lin Yilin, Liu Heung-Shing Liu Wei, Song Dong, Wang Guangyi, Wang Jin, Wang Keping, Weng Fen, Xing Danwen, Yang Fudong, Yangjiang Group, Yin Xiuzhen, Zhang Peili, Zhan Wang, Zhang Wei, Zhang Xiaogang and Zheng Guogu.

The Whitworth and M+ Sigg Collection curators have collaborated on this project to devise a completely unique show that is designed to both enhance the new spaces of the redeveloped Whitworth, while retaining the core message of the M+ Sigg Collection.

Dr. Maria Balshaw, Director of the Whitworth commented: The M+ Sigg Collection is drawn from Swiss collector Uli Sigg's unique collection that arose out of his realisation that the experimental contemporary art practices emerging across China were going undocumented. It is now universally recognised as the largest, most comprehensive and important historical 'document' of the culturally dynamic period of Chinese history between the 1970s to present day. It will form the backbone of the new M+ museum in Hong Kong, due to open in 2017. We are honored and delighted to be the only UK gallery to show these works.

Dr. Uli Sigg said, 'I was interested in the works created in this unpredictable milieu and in the atmosphere of a nation in total transformation... The M+ Sigg Collection invites a critical reflection on the short history of contemporary art in China and cultivates lucid insights into Chinese society in a historical period that in retrospect will be considered very important.'

NOTES TO EDITOR

About the Whitworth

The Whitworth is part of The University of Manchester. It is home to internationally renowned collections of modern art, textiles, watercolours, prints, drawings and sculpture. Created in 1889 as the first English gallery in a park, the Whitworth is today developing a new vision for the role of a university gallery. A creative laboratory within an ambitious university, the Whitworth is serious in intent but playful in execution. It is a place where good, odd things happen.

The Whitworth re-opened to the public on 14 February 2015 after a major £15 million redevelopment by architects MUMA. In the first 6 weeks of opening, the Whitworth welcomed over 100,000 visitors. The redevelopment has doubled public space and created state-of-the-art new facilities including expanded gallery spaces, a study centre, learning studio, and a collections centre. The Whitworth redevelopment is just one part of an ambitious Campus Masterplan that will see The University of Manchester invest £1 billion over the next ten years to create a world class campus for staff, students and visitors.

About M+ Sigg Collection

The M+ Sigg Collection is universally recognised as the largest, most comprehensive and important collection of Chinese contemporary art from the 1970s to the present. The collection is especially important as a historic

'document' of one of the most culturally dynamic periods in modern Chinese history. Consisting of works by 325 artists, it has been systematically built as a coherent museum-quality collection since the early 1990s that allows the viewer to read a coherent story of Chinese contemporary art, from its very roots, to the current decade.

M+ is the new museum for visual culture in Hong Kong, as part of the West Kowloon Cultural District, encompassing 20th and 21st century art, design, architecture and moving image from Hong Kong, China, Asia and beyond. Due to open in 2017, the museum will take a multidisciplinary approach that both challenges and respects existing boundaries while creating a meeting point for a diversity of perspectives, narratives and audiences. M+ has already embarked on a number of public programmes and exhibitions, and has begun to assemble its permanent collection. The museum will consist of a 62,000 square-meter building, designed by Herzog & de Meuron and TFP Farrels, over-looking Victoria Harbour.
