Archival history	This collection consists of papers collected by Marilyn Cuffy through the course of her role as a community and youth worker in Manchester, predominantly covering the decades of the 1980s and 1990s. The archive was transferred to the Ahmed Iqbal Ullah Race Relations Resource Centre in 2015.
Administrative history	Marilyn Cuffy was involved in a number of organisations including the Manchester Black Resource Centre and Community Trust and other groups relating to black and Asian women in Manchester. She was involved in the establishment of a refuge for black women in Manchester, a member of various management committees and participated in the organisation of other community groups such as the African Cultural Society. In addition she delivered a number of courses particularly relating to youth work and anti-racist training. The Manchester Black Resource Centre [GB3228.13/1] officially opened in May 1991 and was located in Cheetham Hill. The purpose of the Centre was to provide a focus for community based economic activities in North Manchester aimed at empowering the black community by providing employment, services, businesses and development training. It was intended that the Centre should provide space for community organisations and small businesses, IT services including a career database and job search, training in word processing and accounting and an information exchange to share resources within the local community. The Manchester Black Community Trust was formed at the Annual General Meeting of the Resource Centre in May 1993 and the Trust was formally registered as a company by guarantee with charitable status in January 1994. The Resource Centre was based in the Old Library Building in Cheetham Hill which was purchased from Manchester City Council by the Tudor Trust in 1993. The aims of the Community Trust outlined in the Constitution included providing support, guidance and opportunities to black and ethnic community development in Manchester, supporting local businesses and initiatives, co-ordinating strategies aimed at the economic regeneration of local communities and implementing a Unified Education and Training Strategy. The Black Women's Commune Group [Ref: GB3228.13/2] was set up in 1986 to discuss plans to establish a refuge for black women in Manchester to meet their cultural and emotional needs. The
Scope and content	The collection includes the papers of the Manchester Black Resource Centre and Community Trust. These papers contain minutes, correspondence, annual reports and documents relating to the establishment of the Resource Centre, details of activities and services, policy documents and the Constitution of the Community Trust. The collection also contains the papers of a number of groups providing support for black and Asian women concerning the areas of employment, education and community projects. Further records relate to the establishment of a refuge for black women in Manchester and training provision in the fields of youth and community work. In addition the collection includes a number of reports and publications.
