Four areas of activity are recognised: (i) Research, (ii) Teaching and other student-related activity, (iii) Service and Leadership, and (iv) Knowledge Transfer and External Engagement. Social Responsibility forms part of the criteria for (i), (ii) and (iv), but can also be taken into account in relation to some activity under (iii). [Examples to be provided in Guidance.]

Which areas of activity are relevant varies between Routes:

For each route, a candidate can choose to include in their case both Service and Leadership and Knowledge Transfer and External Engagement, or just one of the two areas of activity. The criteria stated below for each of these areas of activity are based on it being one of the main areas relied on in a case for promotion. If a candidate has some activity in an area, but not sufficient for this to be one the main areas appealed to, this activity should be included in the case and will be taken into account. [Example to be provided in guidance.]

The intention is that for promotion, an applicant will not necessarily need to show an equally high level of achievement in each of the areas of activity included in the case, but if not, then compensatory achievement in some other area of activity is required.

All cases for promotion will be assessed in the context of the discipline within which the candidate works.

The criteria aim to reward activity that is important to the University’s achieving its mission. Such activity should be rewarded regardless of who carries it out and the criteria reflect this, but the degree to which criteria have to be achieved and which criteria are obligatory vary across levels and promotion routes. Which activity a colleague engages in is determined by contract and local work-load distribution.
Academic: teaching and research

Promotion in this category is based on evidence of achievement in the following areas of activity: Research and Teaching and other student-related activity, together with evidence of achievement in Knowledge Transfer and External Engagement and/or Service and Leadership as appropriate.

Promotion to Professor (academic: teaching and research)

In any case for promotion to Professor, an assessment of performance in one of the chosen areas of activity as being below that expected of a Senior Lecturer will normally preclude promotion. However, in reaching its decision on cases with such an evaluation, the SPC/FPC will take account of any extenuating circumstances drawn to its attention and the applicant’s performance in the other two areas.

All cases for promotion will be assessed in relation to the norms of the discipline within which the candidate works.

- a sustained record of success in obtaining external research funding
- a sustained record of successful supervision of PGR students

And in addition a record of achievement with respect to some of the following criteria (a candidate can either evidence some achievement with respect to a broad range of activity or a high level of achievement with respect to a more narrow range of activity, or some combination thereof):

- evidence of leadership of, and/or a record of service to, the research community external to the University

However, in reaching its decision on cases with such an evaluation, the SPC/FPC will take account of any extenuating circumstances drawn to its attention and the applicant’s performance in the other two areas.
