Supported By

A High Frequency Bus Service linking Piccadilly Rail Station with the Universities and Central Hospitals via Oxford Rd.

This service is part of the Higher Education Precinct (HEP) Travel Plan which aims to encourage sustainable travel, such as public transport. The 147 Oxford Road Link improves links between the HEP area and Piccadilly Rail Station, as well as between the institutions involved. The HEP is made up of The University of Manchester, The Central Manchester & Manchester Children's Hospitals, Manchester Metropolitan University and The Royal Northern College of Music.

The 4 institutions subsidise the service to allow prices to be kept low and in line with the concessionary fare, as well as providing a simple flat rate structure. The service also uses high quality buses, has friendly drivers and receives excellent customer feedback.

With sustainability in mind all leaflets are printed on 100% recycled paper, with any printing materials being sustainably sourced (look for the FSC logo).

The Route The 147 Oxford Road Link starts from bus stop D, outside Piccadilly Rail Station, to the left as you exit onto Fairfield Street.
