Welcome and Introduction to the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute

The Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute (HCRI) at the University of Manchester is inspired by the need to conduct rigorous research and to support postgraduate training on the impact and outcomes of contemporary and historical crises. This programme is driven by a desire to inform and support policy and decision makers, to optimise joint working between partner organisations, and to foster increased accountability within a knowledge gathering framework. Bringing together the disciplines of medicine and the humanities to achieve these aims, the HCRI will facilitate improvements in crisis response on a global scale whilst providing a much needed centre of excellence for all concerned with emergencies and conflicts.

The Institute is developing a novel configuration for research and teaching which will uniquely associate practitioners, non-governmental organisation (NGO) partners, theoreticians, policy makers and analysts in sustained intellectual engagement. Combining a targeted programme of research with the provision of timely analysis on current emergencies, the institute will seek to develop new methodologies in the budding field of humanitarian and conflict response research.

Staff at the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute

Dr Rony Brauman, Director

Qualified as a medical doctor, Rony Brauman has worked in the field of international medical assistance since 1977. Initially serving as a field physician in developing countries with Médecins San Frontières (France), he became the President of the organisation from 1982 -1994. Director of HCRI, Rony is also Associate Professor at L'Institut d'Études Politiques (Paris), and Director of Research at the MSF Foundation also in Paris.

Professor Bertrand Taithe, HCRI Executive Director (Sept 2016 - January 2017)

Born in France, Professor Bertrand Taithe studied at the Sorbonne with Professor François Crouzet and began his career as a historian of urban sociology. He later moved into the history of medicine and sexuality and is particularly interested in the history of humanitarian aid. Professor Taithe is a prolific author, Editor of the European Review of History, and acted as Executive Director of the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute until 2012.

Professor Tony Redmond, Deputy Director

Tony has led medical teams to sudden onset disasters, complex emergencies and conflicts for over twenty-five years. He recently led medical teams to the earthquakes in China in 2008 and Haiti in 2010. He is Director of the UK international Emergency trauma register which aims to improve training and accountability of those who respond to large scale emergencies overseas. He is academic lead for global health education at Manchester medical school.

Adele Aubrey, Institute Manager

Adele is currently completing a Doctorate in Education; her research explores what excellence in enquiry-based learning is, and the dimensions, and dilemmas in teaching and learning. She is a Fellow of the Higher Education Academy, and has facilitated a diverse portfolio of innovative curriculum design projects, particularly in the areas of technology enhanced learning, and sustainability. She has worked at the University of Manchester since 2003 in educational design, and management. Whilst Manager at the Centre for Excellence in Enquiry-based Learning (2008-11) she created a strategic plan that involved positioning the centre around three contextual themes: sustainable development, global citizenship and ethics, providing real-world research-led challenges, for multi and inter-disciplinary student enquiry.

Charlotte Alcock, Communications and Events Officer

I graduated in 2006 with a degree in Biological Sciences from the University of Manchester and have worked at the University for over 7 years in roles related to Student Admissions, Marketing, Schools Liaison and Alumni Relations. I joined HCRI as Communications and Events Officer in August 2016. My responsibilities include recruitment to our programmes and managing the large programme of events that we offer at HCRI which includes academic seminars, recruitment events, international conferences, HCRI events for the general public, both within the University and externally, and large scale conferences. I also contribute to general administrative duties which support the delivery of our programmes.

Dr Eleanor Davey, Lecturer in Humanitarianism & Conflict Response

Eleanor obtained her undergraduate degree from the University of Melbourne and her PhD from Queen Mary, University of London (2011). From 2011-2014 she worked in the Humanitarian Policy Group at the Overseas Development Institute, where she led a project on the uses of history in humanitarian practice and policy. Her doctoral research was on the evolution of French responses to the 'third world', from radical political engagement to humanitarianism, with a focus on Médecins Sans Frontières. Her current research, funded by a British Academy Postdoctoral Fellowship, explores the relationship between humanitarianism and national liberation. Eleanor joined HCRI in May 2014 and also teaches in the history department.

Dr Maura Duffy, Programme Director BSc in Global Health

Maura received an M.A. in International Development (Social Policy and Social Development) from the Global Development Institute, University of Manchester in 2006 and was awarded a PhD in International Development (also within GDI) in 2012. Maura took up the post of Lecturer in Global Health in 2013, she leads on the BSc in Global Health.

Dr Lisa Ficklin, Lecturer in Disaster Management

Lisa completed a BSc in Biological Sciences with Environmental Resource Management at the University of Warwick (2001), a MSc in International Development at the University of Bath (2002) and a PhD in Human Geography at the University of Manchester (2012). She has worked as a Teaching Fellow at both the University of Manchester (2012-2013) and Lancaster University (2013-2014), and has just completed a Research Fellowship at the University of Leeds (2014-2015). She joined the HCRI in May 2015. Lisa's research focuses on disaster capitalism and the post-disaster political space in Nicaragua; and policy pathways that combine disaster risk reduction with climate adaptation and sustainable development in Swaziland, South Africa and Cuba.

Professor Peter Gatrell

Peter obtained his undergraduate and PhD degrees from the University of Cambridge. He has spent most of his academic career at The University of Manchester, including working as Head of the School of History and Classics between 1997 and 2002 prior to becoming part of the School of Arts, Languages and Cultures. Peter's research and teaching interests fall into two broad categories: population displacement in world history and the history of modern Europe. These twin interests are also brought together in his commitment to the cultural history of modern war.

Jessica Hawkins, Programme Director MA in Humanitarianism & Conflict Response

Jessica's research interests are focused on state formation in developing countries from a historical sociology perspective. Specifically, her work looks at power relations within states including military and political power with a particular focus on intrastate conflict and state service delivery in Uganda. Jessica has worked as a tutor in the Global Development Institute at The University of Manchester since 2010 and joins HCRI as a Lecturer in Humanitarian Studies.

Dr Kirsten Howarth

Kirsten undertook her role in HCRI in January 2014. Prior to this, she was a Teaching Fellow in International Development at the Global Development at the University of Manchester. Kirsten completed her PhD in 2012, analysing the causes of post-war violence and crime in El Salvador. Her current research builds on from her PhD by examining urban violence and its humanitarian consequences.

Dr Amy Hughes, Clinical Academic Lecturer in Emergency Response

Dr Amy Hughes is a Clinical Academic Lecturer in Emergency Response at the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute (HCRI), University of Manchester. She is heavily involved in the development of the UK International Emergency Trauma Register and training of its clinicians. The UKIETR aims to provide a structured approach to training of medical teams deploying to disasters to ensure a governed, co-ordinated, clinically competent and guided approach to medical care in disasters. The UK team has recently returned from Typhoon Haiyan. Amy is also completing a PhD – 'The Role and Training of Foreign Medical Teams in Sudden Onset Disasters.' She is course convener for the Emergency Humanitarian Assistance module and contributes to the Global Health Diploma. Clinically, Amy is an Emergency Medicine and Pre-Hospital Care clinician, having recently finished working with London Helicopter Emergency Medical Service prior to which she worked with Medecins Sans Frontier in post-conflict Northern Sri Lanka. She has completed the Diploma Tropical Medicine and Hygiene (Liv) and European Masters in Disaster Medicine.

Professor Tim Jacoby

After working in Turkey and Nigeria during the 1990s, Tim won an ESRC-funded place on the International Conflict Analysis Masters degree programme at the University of Kent. He then completed his PhD and an ESRC Post-Doctoral Fellowship in the Department of Politics at the University of York from 1999-2003. Since 2005, he has been senior lecturer in conflict studies at the Institute for Development Policy & Management, the University of Manchester. His research concerns the historical sociology of state development, political violence and post-war reconstruction - with a particular focus on Turkey.

Dr Rubina Jasani, Lecturer in Humanitarianism and Conflict Response

Rubina's areas of interest are anthropology of violence and reconstruction, medical anthropology with special focus on social suffering and mental illness, and the study of lived Islam in South Asia and the UK. Her doctoral work examined moral and material 'reconstruction' of life after an episode of ethnic violence in Gujarat, Western India in 2002. Working with survivors of ethnic violence, she became interested in mental illness and has completed two pieces of research on ethnicity and mental illness in inner city areas of Birmingham and is the qualitative lead on research studies looking at help-seeking and ‘institutional racism’. At HCRI, she aims to pursue further research in the areas of conflict, culture and mental health.

Dr Bernard Manyena, Programme Director MA in International Disaster Management

Bernard completed his PhD at the University of Northumbria in 2009. He was a Research Fellow at Northumbria University’s Disaster and Development Centre between 2004 and 2013. Bernard joined HCRI in January 2014 as a Lecturer in Disaster Management. Bernard's research interests are in the disaster resilience, humanitarianism and sustainable development connections. The interests emanate from his wide experience in rural development within the developing world context, particularly in Africa and Asia covering countries like Zimbabwe, Ethiopia, Mozambique, East Timor and Sri Lanka.

Professor Roger Mac Ginty, HCRI Executive Director (January 2017-)

Roger is Professor of Peace and Conflict Studies at the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute and the Department of Politics. He is editor (with Oliver Richmond) of the new Taylor and Francis journal Peacebuilding and is currently editing the Handbook on Peacebuilding for Routledge. In 2012-13 he is working on an EU FP7 project ‘Cultures of governance and conflict resolution in India and the EU’. He edits the Rethinking Political Violence book series with Palgrave. His latest book is International Peacebuilding and Local Resistance.

Adil Mohammed, HCRI Communications and Administrative Assistant

Adil Mohammed obtained his degree in Accounting and Finance at The University of Lancaster. He provides administrative support to the Institution by assisting with student learning experience, maintaining communication channels, and other general support.

Dr Tanja R Müller

Tanja received an MA in Linguistics and Philosophy (1991) at the Freie Universität Berlin, an MA in Development Studies at University College Dublin (1994), and a Ph.D. in Development Studies (2003) at the University of East Anglia, Norwich, UK. She has worked as a university lecturer in Dublin (1991-1993) and Asmara (2000-2001), as an education consultant in Japan (1997-1999), and as a journalist on development-related issues (1994-2000). She was assistant professor at Wageningen University from 2003-2005 with the programme African Women Leaders in Agriculture and the Environment (AWLAE), where she worked on the implications of the HIV/AIDS pandemic for rural development in sub-Saharan Africa.

Dr Róisín Read - Research Associate

Róisín has joined the HCRI as part of the Making Peacekeeping Data Work Project which will consider the use and production of UN peacekeeping data in Darfur, continuing her research focus on Sudan and South Sudan and the politics of knowledge production. She is also researching the interactions between northern and southern NGOs in emergency response. Róisín’s research explores the politics of international interventions in conflict situations through an interrogation of language, with a special focus on non-governmental organisations and the Sudans. She completed her ESRC-funded PhD in the Global Development Institute at the University of Manchester in 2013.

Professor Oliver Richmond, Professor of International Relations, Peace and Conflict Studies

Oliver joined us as Professor of International Relations, Peace and Conflict Studies. His primary area of expertise is in peace and conflict theory, and in particular its interlinkages with IR theory. Recently, he has become interested in local forms of critical agency and resistance, and their role in constructing hybrid or post-liberal forms of peace and states (see A Post-Liberal Peace, 2011).

He is editor (with Roger Mac Ginty) of the new Taylor and Francis journal Peacebuilding. Oliver is currently co-directing and involved in several major research projects, funded by a range of research councils and donors. He has received several major grants, including from the Leverhulme Trust, two EUFP7 grants, an EU Marie Curie for post-doctoral support, two grants from the British Academy, as well as UNU, the Carnegie and Nuffield Trusts (for fieldwork and for further post-doctoral support).

Professor Duncan Shaw, Professor of Operations and Critical Systems- Head of Research

Duncan Shaw was appointed Professor of Operations and Critical Systems in 2014. He is Head of the Operations Management Group and has a part-time role in the Manchester University's Humanitarian and Conflict Research Institute. Prior appointments include Professor at the Warwick and Aston Universities. His research and consulting interests focus on government and citizen response to disasters, looking at these challenges from the perspectives of: organisational structure; operational response; societal resilience; community involvement. He chairs the working group on Community Resilience for the International Standards Organisation (ISO) and wrote the standards on mass evacuation (ISO22315) and disaster volunteers (ISO22319) and contributed to standards on waste management (for IAEA). Duncan has conducted research and sat on policy, planning and evaluation committees for the EC, national governments and international NGOs across 15 countries. He has run projects totalling £6.5m for the EC, ESRC, industry and various government departments.

Dr Gemma Sou, Lecturer in Disaster Management

Gemma received a BA in International Relations and Politics at the University of Sheffield (2008), an MA in Urban Planning with specialism in cities of the Global South (2009) at the University of Manchester and a PhD in Development Studies (2014), also here at the University of Manchester. She has worked on diverse projects for BBC Worldwide, the ESRC and DFID, the Ford Foundation, Goldsmiths University of London, The Natural Environment Research Council, the World Bank and UNOY Peacebuilders, based in The Hague. Broadly speaking her research focuses on the experiences of marginalised groups in cities of the Global South and their representation in development discourse. She focuses particularly on multi-scalar approaches to address disaster risk in 'Southern cities', the intersection of disaster risk management and broader development processes and how vulnerable groups are embedding disaster risk management into social and cultural norms at the grassroots level.

Professor James Thompson

James Thompson is Project Director of In Place of War, and a Professor of Applied and Social Theatre in the Department of Drama at the University of Manchester. In Place of War came out of his work in Sri Lanka, where in 2000 he was invited by UNICEF to run training courses for practitioners working with young people affected by conflict. During these sessions, James was impressed by the extensive use of theatre in response to the 20 year long civil war, which in turn, led to many of the research questions addressed by In Place of War. James has continued work with close colleagues in Sri Lanka, and through In Place of War, has continued to explore his interest in the relationship between performance and war. James specialises in performance in conflict and disaster zones, theatre with offenders, theatre and development and Sri Lankan theatre. He has documented theatre practice in Sri Lanka, Democratic Republic of Congo, Banda Aceh and the UK.

Dr William Thomson – Lecturer in Humanitarian Studies & Conflict Response

Prior to engaging with the academic world, Bill had accumulated 20 years of applied experience in the sectors of conflict and peacekeeping, and disaster management, acting as a director/consultant. His primary academic interests in peace and conflict studies, cross the boundaries of humanitarianism and development studies. His most recent work over the past five years has focused on evaluating international and grass-roots conflict intervention processes, primarily as a route to human needs development in protracted conflict crises, (Israel-Palestine). With an initial, and ongoing interest in religious conflict, Bill read for the Degree of Bachelor of Theology (Honours) at the University of Aberdeen. He continued thereafter to read for the Degree of Master of Research in Political Research and International Relations, also from the University of Aberdeen. He received his PhD from the University of St Andrews, School of International Relations, Centre of Peace and Conflict Studies. Prior to joining HCRI at the University of Manchester, Bill was a Teaching Fellow at the University of Glasgow discussing the Israel-Palestine conflict. He was latterly a lecturer at the University of St Andrews for the MLitt in Critical Security Studies. Currently, he has a developing interest in humanitarian ontology and the evaluation of humanitarian intervention models in contemporary peacebuilding. He is currently completing a monograph, entitled "Conflict Intervention and Human Needs Development in Israel-Palestine 1993-2016".

Dr Birte Vogel - PGT Director and Programme Director MA in Peace & Conflict Studies

Birte completed a PhD in Humanitarianism and Conflict Response at the University of Manchester and holds an MLitt in Peace and Conflict Studies from the University of St Andrews, as well as a BA in Economics and Political Science from the University of Münster. She is Assistant Editor of the Taylor and Francis journal Peacebuilding and executive member of the International Studies Association's (ISA) Peace Studies Section. Birte's research explores the interplay between international and local actors in peace interventions. She investigates the political space(s) available for non-state actors in the area of peace and conflict studies. Her current research focuses on trade and conflict resolution with an emphasis on micro-economic behaviour in deeply divided societies. She is interested in supervising PhD projects in the area of civil society/ NGOs and peacebuilding, or economics and peacebuilding.

Dr Darren Walter - Senior Lecturer in Global Health

Darren Walter is a Consultant in Emergency Medicine and Trauma Lead at the University Hospital of South Manchester, an EMS Assistant Medical Director of the North West Ambulance Service and Medical Director of the Regional Air Ambulance in the North West of England. He is a Board Member of the Faculty of the Faculty of Pre-hospital Care at the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh and the British Association for Immediate Care (BASICS), holding the international portfolio for both organisations. Through the UHSM Academy, he leads a trauma education programme at Gulu University in Northern Uganda to develop a trauma system in this post-conflict region of Africa. Through this link he has been appointed Consultant Technical Advisor for the creation of the Ugandan National Ambulance Service where he spends 25% of his time. His research interests are focussed on international ambulance service systems and development, particularly in Africa.

Programme Aims and Learning Outcomes

Individual MA Programmes:

MA in Humanitarianism and Conflict Response

Programme Director: Dr Jessica Hawkins (jessica.hawkins@manchester.ac.uk)

Aims: The course brings together scholars from the departments of medicine and the humanities to offer a truly multidisciplinary perspective to the study of Humanitarianism and Conflict Response. Students will be able to draw synergies from an exceptionally wide breadth of disciplinary traditions and research expertise, embracing the disciplines of history, the arts, medicine, politics and development studies. Throughout the year students will have the opportunity to engage with scholars and practitioners from the humanitarian world, including Dr Rony Brauman and Prof Tony Redmond.

Masters Students should be able to show a critical understanding of:

1. Key issues and debates in Humanitarianism and Conflict Response, familiarity with different theoretical approaches, practical problems and an appreciation of the diversity of policies at international and national levels.
2. Both the range of social science topics associated with Humanitarianism and Conflict Response and the normative and historiographic assumptions which underpin these issues.
3. The analytical and policy literature concerning the related issues of the causes of conflict, reconstruction, ethics and international governance structures and institutions, the role and perspectives of the state, multilateral and bilateral agencies, international and domestic NGOs and other civil institutions.
4. A detailed and extensive understanding of a specific conceptual and/or policy-related area of Humanitarianism and Conflict Response, of the implications and limitations of research findings on this subject; and of how to produce an original piece of academic research, all through their dissertation.

Core courses: SALC60031 Humanitarianism and Conflict Response: Inquiries; SALC61201 History of Humanitarian Aid; SALC60172 Research and Evaluation Methods; SALC60042 Humanitarian Responses to Crises: Case Studies; SALC60090 Dissertation

Optional courses: A full list of optional modules can be found via the Course Unit Information Portlet (which can be accessed through My Manchester).

MA in Peace and Conflict Studies

Programme Director: Dr Birte Vogel (birte.vogel@manchester.ac.uk)

Aims: This course offers students a critical interdisciplinary perspective with insights from law, politics, philosophy, development studies, peace studies, anthropology and global health providing students with a holistic understanding of the causes of and responses to conflict. Throughout the year, students will have the opportunity to engage with some of the world's leading peace scholars and peacebuilding practitioners. A mandatory fieldtrip will allow students to consider the practical application of the theories and concepts.

Masters Students should be able to show a critical understanding of:

1. Key issues and debates related to the theories of peace and practices of peacebuilding. Students will show familiarity with different theoretical approaches, practical problems and an appreciation of the diversity of policies at international, regional, national and sub-national levels.

2. The range of social science topics which influence peacebuilding (including political, historical, anthropological understandings of peace and related programming). Students will become familiar with the methodological and normative underpinnings of these disciplines and their concomitant effect on peacebuilding
3. The analytical and policy literature concerning the related issues of peacebuilding, including international governance structures, the concept of statebuilding, foreign policy analysis and the role of key actors and institutions including the state, multilateral and bilateral agencies, international and domestic NGOs as well as the military and other security actors.
4. An understanding of local approaches to peacebuilding, including an awareness of the problems and critiques associated with 'bottom up' approaches.
5. The development of a range of academic and professional/transferrable skills through both independent and group-based work
6. A detailed understanding of a specific conceptual and/or policy-related area of peacebuilding along with implications and limitations of research findings on this subject, and of how to produce an original piece of academic research. Delivered via the dissertation module.

Core courses: SALC60121 Peace and Social Agency, Security and Intervention: Theories and Practices; SALC61072 Practical Approaches to Studying Conflict-Affected Societies;

Optional courses: A full list of optional modules can be found via the Course Unit Information Portlet (which can be accessed through My Manchester).

MSc in International Disaster Management

Programme Director: Dr Bernard Manyena (bernard.mayena@manchester.ac.uk)

Aims: The course is designed for participants who want to develop both theoretical and practical management skills in preparation, response and recovery from natural and man-made disasters. The core curriculum combines the development of practical analysis skills to support emergency management policies with an understanding of ethical issues in global humanitarian actions. This results in a course that is suitable as a way to develop initial skills in disaster management or support continuing education for disaster management professionals.

Masters Students should be able to show a critical understanding of:

1. Key issues and debates related to the practices of disaster management. Students will show familiarity with different theoretical approaches, practical problems and an appreciation of the diversity of policies at international and national levels.
2. The range of environmental, health and social science topics which influence disaster management (including political, historical, anthropological understandings). Students will become familiar with the methodological and normative underpinnings of these disciplines.
3. The analytical and policy literature concerning the related issues of disaster management, including environmental/geological studies, emergency management structures and institutions, the role and perspectives of the state, multilateral and bilateral agencies, international and domestic NGO's and other civil institutions.
4. An understanding of common approaches to disaster management (i.e. risk matrices, disaster typologies), including an awareness of the problems and critiques associated with disaster preparedness in both industrialized and developing countries.
5. The development of a range of academic and professional/transferable skills through both independent and group-based work.
6. A detailed understanding of a specific conceptual and/or policy-related area of disaster management along with implications and limitations of research findings on this subject, and of how to produce an original piece of academic research. Delivered via a dissertation.

Core courses: SALC60141 Disaster Management – Theory and Application; SALC60261 Disaster Governance; SALC60172 Research and Evaluation Methods; SALC60252 Cultures and Disasters; SALC60090 Dissertation

Optional courses: A full list of optional modules can be found via the Course Unit Information Portlet (which can be accessed through My Manchester).

Please note: if you opt to undertake non-SALC coded courses you will be required to abide by the rules and regulations of the host department for the duration of that module. You are advised to seek a copy of their programme handbook and mark scheme and to contact their Postgraduate Programmes Administrator for all module enquiries.

Plagiarism Detection

All PGT work is submitted via Turnitin (available via Blackboard). Turnitin is a plagiarism detection software which allows markers to see if work has been copied from other sources or from other students. Students will be advised on how to submit their assignments through Turnitin at the start of the course.

Please note: The HCRI takes all cases of plagiarism very seriously. Students are advised to seek further information on plagiarism and Turnitin from:

<http://documents.manchester.ac.uk/display.aspx?DocID=2870>

Teaching and Learning

Self-Directed Learning

In addition to the elements of organised teaching and learning described above, all postgraduate students are expected to undertake their own programme of self-directed learning and skills acquisition. This may involve self-directed reading, languages, computer training, attendance at research seminars in other departments, visits to local galleries and museums, voluntary work in relevant institutions, and many other forms of encounter.

Students are encouraged to record and reflect upon these activities in some form or another (e.g. a dedicated notebook or on computer). Particular attention might be paid to noting down difficult or stimulating ideas which prompt you to think about your topic in new (especially unexpected) ways. It will also be useful to produce commentaries on stimulating books, visits to museums or contact with humanitarian organisations etc. Such self-directed learning facilitates students in developing intellectual independence, confidence and creativity.

Other activities

MA students are also expected to participate in the broader research culture of the School of Arts, Languages and Cultures, where they are regarded as playing an important role. Activities include:

- School research seminars: research papers are given by distinguished guests and visitors to the School.
- Regular conferences organised within the School
- Seminars in other disciplines: MA students benefit greatly from attendance at seminars in other, related, disciplines, in terms of broadening their intellectual horizons and developing their confidence and creativity. The fortnightly University magazine UniLife, carries details of lectures and seminars across the University, at the Whitworth Art Gallery, and the John Rylands Library. The Centre for the History of Science, Technology and Medicine and the subject areas of English, History, Modern Languages, Sociology and Anthropology all run excellent research seminars. Students who are interested in a particular discipline are advised to visit the SALC Postgraduate Office <http://www.alc.manchester.ac.uk/graduateschool/> in the relevant School and ask for a programme of research seminars.

Academic Writing

The School of Arts, Languages and Cultures provides postgraduate students with advice on academic writing through various workshops, seminars and masterclasses held throughout the year.

Please consult the postgraduate study skills website for specific information on this, <http://www.humanities.manchester.ac.uk/studyskills/>

Your assigned personal tutor will oversee your progress throughout the year. Your personal tutor will meet with you throughout the year to discuss your academic progress and is a source of support and advice if you are experiencing difficulties that directly affect your studies. Please do stay in touch with your tutor and seek advice when required.

Key Dates for Full Time Students

Semester One Coursework*

Tuesday 17th January 2017

Submission of Written Research Outline

Tuesday 21st February 2017

Semester Two Coursework*

Tuesday 16th May 2017

Placement Report (for those students taking the ICP Placement unit)

Friday 26th May 2017

Resubmitted Coursework

Friday 11th August 2017

MA Dissertation Submission

Monday 4th September 2017

Key Dates for Part Time Students

NOTE FOR FIRST YEAR PART TIME STUDENTS: All submission dates in your second year will be confirmed in the 2017-18 handbook. All assessment below is required, but some only in your second year.

Semester One Coursework*

Tuesday 17th January 2017

Submission of Written Research Outline

September 2015 starters – Tuesday 21st February 2017

September 2016 starters – to be confirmed in 2017-18 handbook

Semester Two Coursework*

Tuesday 16th May 2017

Placement Report (for those students taking the ICP Placement unit)

Friday 26th May 2017

Resubmitted Coursework

Friday 11th August 2017

MA Dissertation Submission

September 2015 starters – Monday 4th September 2017 OR Monday 4th December 2017

September 2016 starters – to be confirmed in 2017-18 handbook

*Please note that some course units may have alternative coursework deadlines to those listed above. Please see the individual course unit handbooks for confirmation.

Late Submission

Any assessed coursework submitted after the deadline without good cause will incur a penalty determined by the lateness of its arrival:

- ten marks will be deducted for the first day after the deadline
- ten additional marks will be deducted for each day thereafter (including weekends), up until 5 days (after which point a mark of zero will be awarded)

If you are registered on units outside of the School, you should ensure that you are aware of the penalties that will be imposed for late course work submission for that School. Schools may operate different penalty schemes for late submission.

Mitigating Circumstances

During the forthcoming academic year, you may experience unforeseeable and unpreventable personal or medical circumstances that have a significant adverse effect on your academic performance. If you do find yourself in this position, you may be eligible to apply for mitigating circumstances in relation to coursework submission deadlines. Please consult your academic advisor and the SALC information on mitigating circumstances,

<http://www.alc.manchester.ac.uk/studentintranet/support/mitigatingcircumstances/>

Style Guidance for Humanitarianism and Conflict Response MA Students

All assessed coursework submitted by HCRI MA students must utilise a recognised system of academic referencing correctly and consistently. Proper referencing is necessary to avoid plagiarism and to allow the reader to find sources, trace the development of your argument or assess the depth of your research. As HCRI is an interdisciplinary field of study, you will need to utilise both the Harvard style and the Footnote/Numeric style during the course. Note: You must use one or the other (not a combination of both!) and apply it consistently to all of your work. This short guide outlines some basic principles of both systems. For further clarification style guides to the Harvard and Numeric styles are available online usually through other university institutions. Increasingly publications are available in electronic format. But, where the electronic version duplicates the print copy (like a PDF journal article or electronic book) please cite it as a print publication.

Harvard Referencing

The Harvard style of referencing is used broadly across the arts and humanities. Here publications and other sources are cited in the text, e.g. (Pearce, 2002) and a list of these citations is included at the end of the essay or dissertation, in alphabetical order by authorship with date. This system is useful because numerical referencing in the form of footnotes can then be used for explanatory notes instead of citation.

Example:

Hartman (2005), in her seminal study on urban regeneration, found no evidence to support the role of charitable donations. However, Okuda concludes that "donations can have some positive impact if the donors are involved throughout the project's history" (1995:22). The present fieldwork indicated support for the latter viewpoint from the Bamako project (Toure 2000).

Author details. (Year) Page title/heading, Publisher/organisation [Online], Available: URL [date accessed]

- Bradstock, T. (2003) Egypt Online Network, Manchester College of Technology [Online], Available: <http://www.mct.ac.uk/cfs/egypt.html> [Accessed: 14 September 2007]

Notes: if no author is apparent, use organisation name or page title; if publication date is not clear put (n.d.)

Foreign language document:

Use relevant reference format given above, all translated into English, then give the original language title in brackets after the translated title. E.g.

- Ministry of Foreign Affairs (2003) Software Production and Trade in Latin America [Producción y Comercio de Software en América Latina], Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Buenos Aires, Argentina

Note: What matters most is a) that the reader could locate any item in your reference list; b) that you are consistent: i.e. that you do all similar items the same way.

Footnoting/Numeric Style

Use numbered footnotes to give citation details in addition to a bibliography. For second or later mention of the same work in footnotes, use: author, date (and page number or numbers where relevant). Avoid using ibid or *op. cit.

Example:

Hartman, in her seminal study on urban regeneration, found no evidence to support the role of charitable donations.¹ However, Okuda concludes that ‘donations can have some positive impact if the donors are involved throughout the project’s history’.² The present fieldwork indicated support for the latter viewpoint from the Bamako project.³

¹ Paula V. Hartman, 'Urban regeneration in the Third World', Regeneration Today, 13 [4] (2005), pp. 23-45.

² Zena Okuda, Charities, Donors and Projects (London, 1995) p. 22.

³ Susan Toure, Personal interview

Notes: Try to place all footnotes after punctuation, preferably after a full stop.

Footnotes & Bibliographies

Footnotes and Bibliographies are prepared in a similar way. There are, however, slight differences between the two. This guide should be referred to as you get used to all the different rules and regulations. Try to place all footnotes after punctuation.

Footnotes in text

Footnotes are prepared according to similar rules to bibliographic references, but with three important differences: 1) In footnotes, we list the forename before the surname: ‘Mary Smith’, not ‘Smith, Mary’. 2) An entry only appears once in a bibliography, but you may have to refer to the same work several times in footnotes. When you mention the same book, article or essay more than once in your footnotes, you use the full citation the first time, but thereafter you use what is called ‘short form citation.’ We no longer use ibid. or op. cit. or other devices. 3) In footnotes, we always need to indicate the specific page or pages we have taken our information from. This means that we end each footnote by specifying the exact page (signified by p.) or pages (signified by pp.) on which we found that specific piece of information or argument.

Books - Second and subsequent citations:

Poovey, Making a Social Body, p. 38.

Essays in Books - First citation:

David Frisby, ‘The Metropolis as Text: Otto Wagner and Vienna’s “Second Renaissance”’, in Neil Leach (ed.), The Hieroglyphics of Space (London, 2002), pp. 22-24. [The pages on which the information can be found.]

Essays in Books - Second and subsequent citations:

Frisby, ‘The Metropolis as Text’, p. 28.

Articles in Journals - First citation:

Graeme Gilloch, ‘The Heroic Pedestrian or the Pedestrian Hero? Walter Benjamin and the

Articles in Journals - Second and subsequent citations:

Gilloch, 'The Heroic Pedestrian or the Pedestrian Hero?', p. 117.

Bibliographies

The bibliography needs to be prepared according to the following rules. There are variations to these rules which different historians may apply, but the key thing is for you to be consistent throughout your work. Pay attention to your colons, commas, full stops, brackets and use of italics. In terms of secondary sources, you will use three major types in your work: books, essays in books, and articles in journals.

Books:

Surname, Forename. Full Title of Book in Italics: Including Subtitles and Dates After a Colon with Each Important Word Written with a Capital (Place of Publication Nearest to You, Date of Publication).

E.g.: Haine, Scott. The World of the Paris Café: Sociability among the French Working Class, 1789- 1914 (London, 1996). Poovey, Mary. Making a Social Body: British Cultural Formation, 1830-1864 (Chicago, 1995).

Essays in Books:

Surname, Forename. 'Full Title of Essay in Single Inverted Commas but not Italics: "Double Inverted Commas are for Quotes Within the Title"', in Firstname Surname (ed. [or eds. if there is more than one editor]), Full Title of Book in Italics (Place of Publication Nearest to You, Date of Publication), pp. 123-456 [the page numbers of the essay in the book must be included].

E.g.: Frisby, David. 'The Metropolis as Text: Otto Wagner and Vienna's "Second Renaissance"', in Neil Leach (ed.), The Hieroglyphics of Space (London, 2002), pp. 15-30. Jelavich, Peter. 'Performing High and Low: Jews in Modern Theater, Cabaret, Revue and Film', in Emily Bilski (ed.), Berlin Metropolis: Jews and the New Culture, 1890-1918 (London, 1999), pp. 208- 235.

Articles in Journals:

Surname, Forename. 'Full Title of the Article in Single Inverted Commas but not Italics: "Double Inverted Commas are for Quotes Within the Title"', Full Title of Journal in Italics 4 [Number of journal in year or in series] (Year in Brackets), pp. 123-456 [the page numbers of the article in the journal must be included].

E.g.: Garside, Paul. "'Unhealthy Areas": Town Planning, Eugenics and the Slums, 1890-1945', Planning Perspectives 3 (1988), pp. 24-46. Gilloch, Graeme. 'The Heroic Pedestrian or the Pedestrian Hero? Walter Benjamin and the Flâneur', Telos 91 (1992), pp. 108-117.

Dissertations: The MA Research Outline

Successful completion of the Research Outline is the compulsory pre-requisite for the completion of the MA dissertation. Students are required to submit a written Research Outline (see key dates)

We strongly recommend that students should make contact with one or more members of the academic staff with appropriate experience in their chosen field for advice and feedback on the proposed research before submitting the written proposal. Contact details and research interests are provided in the subject area section of this handbook.

Aims:

- To help structure the second semester of the MA leading to the writing of a significant research-based dissertation
- To invite students to plan their project in a concise manner with a clear timetable and concrete attainable research objectives
- To enable students to present orally and in written form their research ideas in order to enable them to obtain rapid feedback at an early stage
- To give students the opportunity to develop skills in research design, project management and other transferable skills essential for their future career
- To help students considering further research to draft a potential funding application

Intended Outcomes:

- A well defined research question
- A clear awareness of sources available to address the question
- A clear awareness of the methodological issues that need to be addressed in the research
- A clear awareness of research planning and timetabling
- Correct use of bibliographical conventions applied in the discipline

The Written Research Outline

Written Research Outlines should be submitted following the same guidelines as for other pieces of course-assessed work.

The research outline must consist of a core document of 500-750 words followed by an appendix.

The core document should state clearly:

- Your reasons for undertaking this project
- The research problems or questions you intend to address
- The research context in which those problems or questions are located. In describing the context, you should refer to the current state of knowledge and any recent debate on the subject.
- The particular contribution to knowledge and understanding in this area that you hope to make. You should explain why the work is important. The fact that an area has not been studied previously is not, in itself, a reason for doing it.
- The methods and critical approaches that you plan to use to address the problems or questions you have set. We don't just need to know what you are going to work on, we need to know how you plan to go about it

In the appendix you should provide supporting information:

- A brief breakdown of the chapters or sections of the thesis (1 page maximum)
- A timetable of research and writing (1 page maximum)
- Additional training and preparation you may need, indicating any ethical issues which may arise and could require clearance from the Ethical Committee (1 page maximum)
- A working bibliography of sources that you intend to use. In the case of unpublished or rare materials you will need to state where these sources are located and how these will be accessed. For example, if you are undertaking an archaeology project, do you need a permit to access a particular site and how will this be obtained? It is sometimes helpful to put forward alternative strategies or approaches if you are aware that problems might arise. (2 pages maximum)

Submission of Written Research Outline

Tuesday 21st February 2017

Guidance for the Assessment of the Research Outline

The Research Outline is marked on a pass/refer basis: it is not given a numerical mark and in that sense does not contribute towards your overall degree result. A successful Research Outline will contain all the elements specified above, and will demonstrate satisfactorily that this is a viable project capable of being brought to completion in the time available. Successful completion of the Research Outline results in an agreement in principle to proceed to the dissertation. Students who do not achieve the agreement in principle will be allowed to resubmit the research outline up until the final submission date for semester two coursework. Re-submissions can be made at any time before that date and, in agreement with the potential supervisor, students can re-submit as many times as they wish before the final deadline. All submissions and re-submissions should be made to the Taught Programmes office.

A final fail will be recorded if the outline remains grossly inadequate on re-submission or if the student has failed to submit a research outline. Failing to resubmit the research outline will result in the student being ineligible to submit a dissertation.

Allocations of Supervisors

Once the deadline for submitting the research outlines has passed, the PGT Teaching Director will assign dissertation supervisors. Please note - allocation will be assigned according to areas of research (both in terms of research topic and geographic location).

For more information on the supervision process, please consult the HCRI Dissertation Handbook.
