

Gone in a flash!

If your USB flash drive is lost, stolen or given away, your unencrypted information could be quickly and easily accessed - even if the files have been deleted.

If you find a USB flash drive, hand it in to lost property; never attempt to access it yourself in case the drive is infected with a virus.

For help with encryption or other IT topics, contact the IT Support Centre.