Thesis access requirements

The University of Manchester is committed to ensuring as wide an audience as possible can access and read the outputs of its research and scholarship. The University supports the principles of Open Access and the efforts of its researchers to disseminate their research findings as widely as possible.

University policy requires that your final thesis must be made Open Access via the University's repository no longer than 12 months after submission, unless an exception to this policy is required for reasons of sponsorship or sensitive content. This aligns with the University's Publications Policy, which applies to all students and employees of the University.

You must now select your preferred access level for your final thesis, following the examination process. Your preferred access level for your final thesis is subject to approval by your supervisor, and will be considered during the examination process.

Please be assured that the electronic version of your examination thesis is automatically closed access. Your examination thesis is only accessible to approved members of University staff and external examiners for administrative purposes.

Visit our Frequently Asked Questions page for Postgraduate Research Students for further information on access levels and intellectual property or copyright issues,

Select access level

Select your preferred access level for your final thesis 😗 Immediate Open Access

Please note:

Your selected access level for your final thesis is subject to approval by your supervisor.

Your selection is final, and cannot be changed after you have completed first submission of your examination thesis.

Please contact your Postgraduate Research Administrator if you have any questions or concerns about your final thesis access level.
