Course Outlines

Each course unit has a course outline which provides information about the content of the course unit, the aims and intended learning outcomes, the teaching methods and methods of assessment and more.

You can search for the outline for each course unit at the following link:

When to Select Course Units

You will be automatically enrolled on the core course units for your degree programme by the Teaching, Learning and Student Experience Office. You will need to select your chosen optional course units using the Student System via My Manchester.

You will be able to select your optional course units from 10am on Monday 3 September 2018. You should select your optional course units for both semester 1 and semester 2 for the 2018-19 academic year.

When selecting your semester 1 and year-long options you will also need to select a related class i.e. a seminar, where applicable. Information later in this document explains how to select your course units and seminars.

When selecting your semester 2 options you will need to select SEM0 as a related class. This allows you to enrol on the course unit correctly. Later in the academic year you will be advised when and how you can select a specific time for your semester 2 seminars.

Although you are asked to select optional course units upon registration in September, you will be allowed to change your optional course units within a limited period of time. From the beginning of teaching in each semester, a period of two weeks is permitted in which your election of optional course units can change.

This means that the final selection of semester one course units must be made by Friday 5 October 2018 and the final selection of semester two course units must be made by Friday 8 February 2019.

Timetables

You will find generic lecture and seminar timetables for all postgraduate taught course units on notice boards on the third floor of the Williamson Building.

You can also view generic lecture timetables by degree programme at the following webpage from 03 September 2018. You will need to log in using your University username and password: <http://www.law.manchester.ac.uk/student-intranet/course-unit-selection/timetables/>

Please note that the lecture grids will include all course units available for the degree programme

Personalised Timetable

There is a timetable on the Student System, which shows your courses, but it does not show rooms. This timetable updates immediately so it is a useful reference point when you are trying to select your course units (and resolve any timetables clashes if applicable).

However, you must check your personalised My Manchester timetable for the location of your classes. You access this timetable go to the My Home tab on My Manchester. Timetables will go live just before the start of the first semester.

IMPORTANT: Once you've selected course units/made changes to your course units, your My Manchester timetable usually takes between 24 and 48 hours to update. It does not update immediately. If you need to know the location of a class, check the notice boards on the third floor of the Williamson Building.

Not all timetabled activities will run on a weekly basis so it is important you check your timetable online. You can view your timetable by semester, but we would strongly encourage you to check your weekly timetable each week.

Need help on how to access and use your timetable? Look at the guide for students on how to use the My Manchester timetables
