

Denmark Road

Simon Periton The Outsider/The Insider, 2010

Nico Vascellari Bus de la Lum, 2011

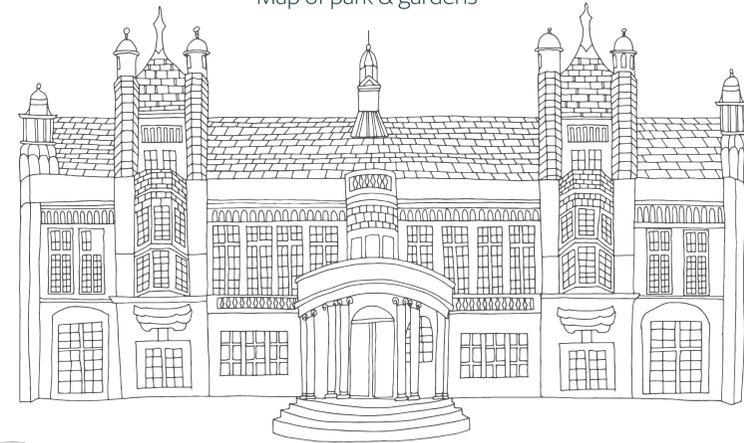

Alex Bernstein Garden

Emily Young Marzema Warrior Head V, 2011

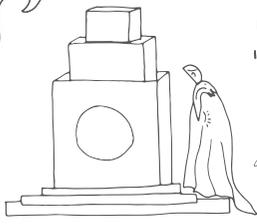

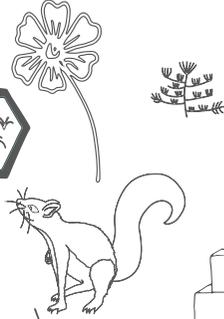

Map of park & gardens

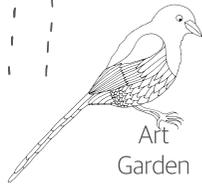

the Whitworth

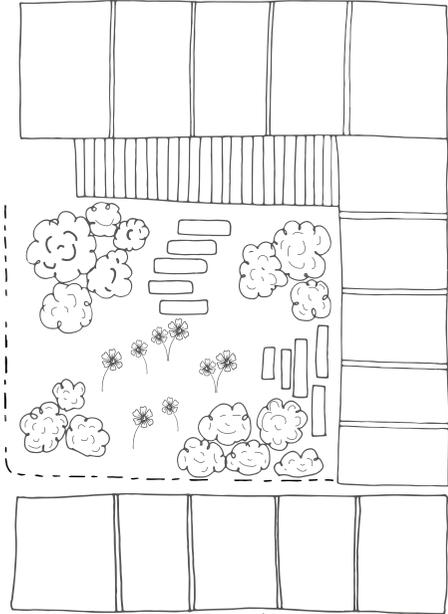

Community Garden

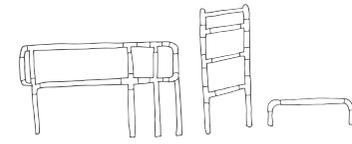

Raqs Media Collective Bending, 2017

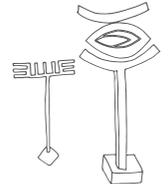

Art Garden

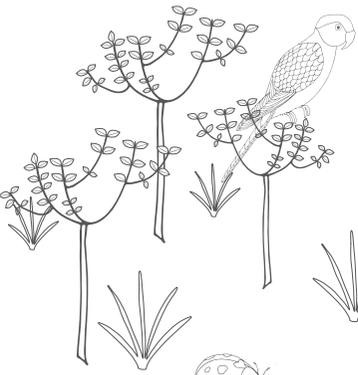

Nathan Coley Gathering of Strangers, 2007

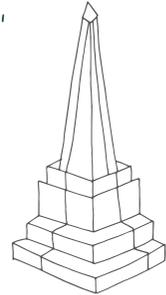

Jacqueline Donachie Crawford Heights, 2004

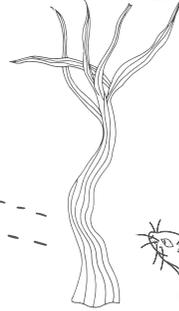

Bernard Schottlander Terminal & Untitled, 1964

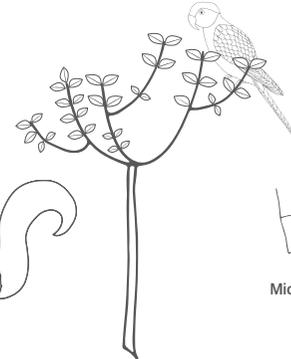

Playground

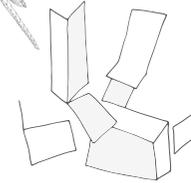

Cyprien Gaillard The Whitworth Park Obelisk, 2011

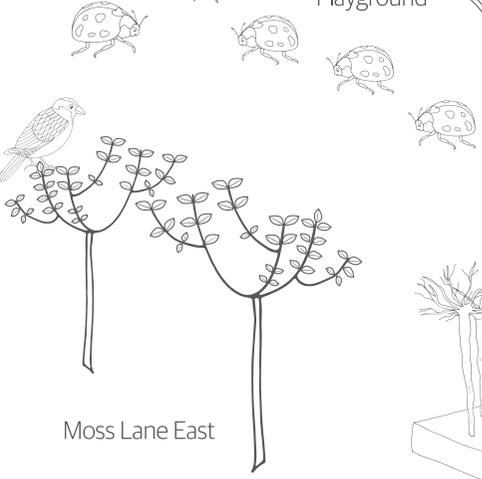

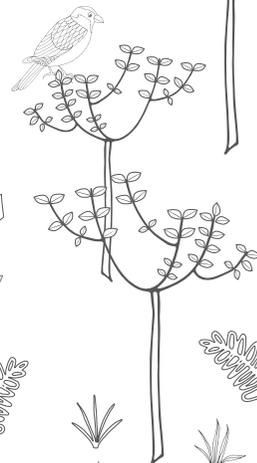

Anya Gallaccio Ghost Tree, 2016

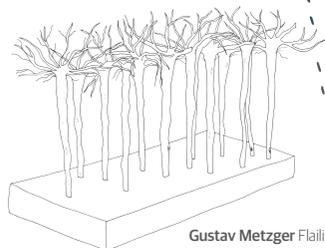

Christine Borland Support work (Hippocrates 1:085), 2015

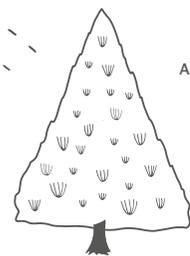

Michael Lyons Phalanx, 1977

Moss Lane East

Gustav Metzger Flailing Trees, 2009

Giant Sequoia

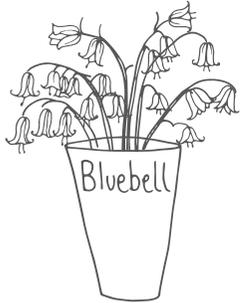

Nate Lowman Snowman, 2014

Oxford Road

Our important plants

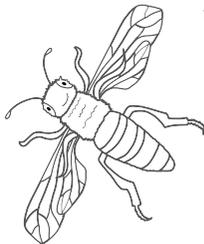

Can you find them in the Art Garden?

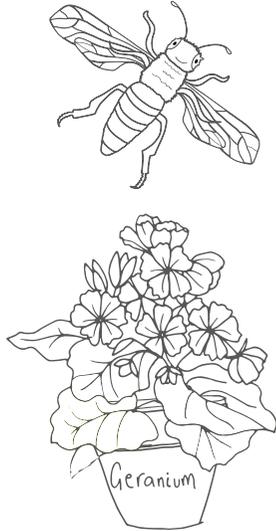

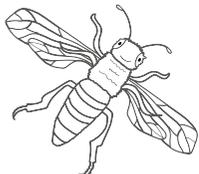

Bluebell sap is sticky and was used in medieval times to attach feathers to arrows. Bluebells can also be used in medicines, but you must not eat them!

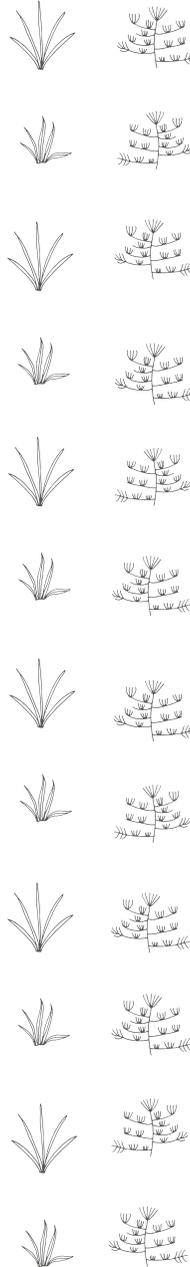

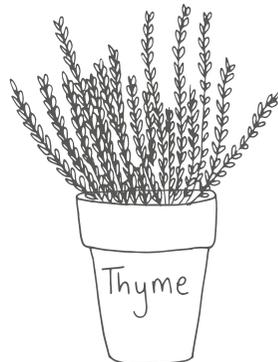

Mint and thyme are both herbs. They can be used in cooking, medicine and are even used in perfumes.

Did you know that the Ancient Greeks believed that thyme was the source of courage? And the Ancient Egyptians used thyme when making mummies!

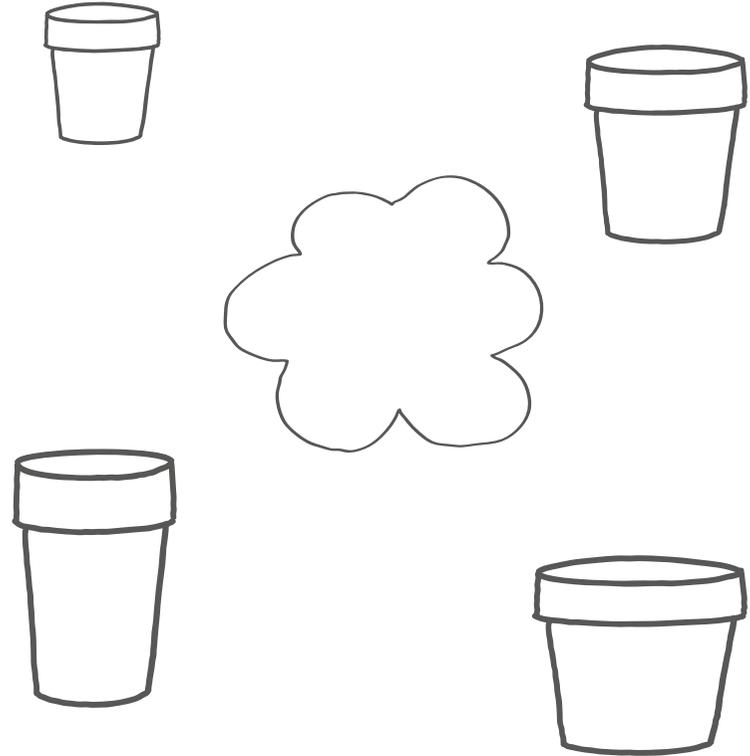

However, the leaves and petals of scented geraniums are edible. What do they smell like? Can you touch their leaves gently? What do they feel like?

Your important plants

Which plants are your favourites?
Can you tell us why?
And can you draw them?

Follow us for more information

Facebook Facebook/thewhitworth
Instagram @whitworthart
Twitter @whitworthart
#WhitworthFamilies

Proud to be part of

The University of Manchester
The Whitworth

The Whitworth
The University of Manchester
Oxford Road, Manchester M15 6ER
manchester.ac.uk/whitworth

Please recycle responsibly
Illustrations © Melanie Smith @smithandwonder.com