

Feedback and Evaluation

"I wanted to feedback how well I thought today's event went. Clearly well-rehearsed, and the structure, timing, and opportunities for engagement still made it feel like a positive, valued activity." Attendee 2020 event

Events

Approximately 350 staff, students and Public Contributors have attended our celebration events

“ The celebration events showcased the important work taking place across the Faculty in Social Responsibility and Public Engagement and highlighted how Manchester is in a unique opportunity to be a beacon of excellence for health. **”

Professor Graham Lord,
Vice-President and Dean of the Faculty

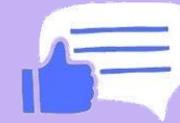

PPIE Awards

We have awarded 54 staff, students and Public Contributors through our 'Outstanding Contribution to PPIE' Awards

“ Meaningful public engagement should lead to better Science by providing new and additional perspectives to the hitherto, single minded researcher. **”

Professor Mahesh Nirmalan,
Vice Dean for Social Responsibility and Public Engagement

Evaluation

We used different evaluation methods: questionnaires, conversations with attendees, feedback via; post-it notes, email and twitter

“ The event was interesting, inspiring and invigorating! It was fascinating and very impressive to see the work being done across the Faculty, and also to see how it is growing and expanding year on year at such a steady rate. **”

Ailsa Donnelly,
Public Contributor

“ The event exemplified the value of PPIE across the Faculty and it was a pleasure to see that even in these times our staff, students and Public Contributors can still come together to celebrate, highlighting even more how passionate we all are about PPIE. **”
