

A week in the life of our BSc IDMHR student, Maisy

Hi, I'm Maisy and I'm a final year student at the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute. I'm really enjoying studying International Disaster Management and Humanitarian Response at The University of Manchester. Although the prospect of final year can feel overwhelming, I have fantastic relationships with my lecturers and teaching staff so feel supported the whole way. Being on a small course, I feel like I'm known personally, and I receive tailored guidance whenever I need it. HCRI is a leading global centre in its field, and I have had the privilege of learning from not just talented academics, but leading practitioners. Manchester is a fantastic city to study in, with a radical history and vibrant culture. There's always something to get involved with in the university and wider community. Studying at The University of Manchester has set me up well for the world beyond graduation and I'll be a proud alumna of the university.

Formal study hours

Informal study hours

Student society

Part-time work

Social activities

Monday	10:00-12:00 University reading at home	12:00-14:00 Work on assignments at home	14:00-16:00 Ethical Decision Making Under Pressure Lecture	16:00-18:00 Work on assignments in the library	18:00-20:00 Work on dissertation in the library	20:00-22:00 Go to a pub for drinks with friends
Tuesday	10:00-12:00 Seminar prep at home	12:00-14:00 Ethical Decision Making Under Pressure Seminar	14:00-16:00 University reading at home	16:00-18:00 Yoga class at my local leisure centre	18:00-20:00 Work on dissertation at home	20:00-22:00 Have dinner with all my house mates
Wednesday	10:00-12:00 Climate Change and Society Lecture	12:00-14:00 Society planning meeting at Kro Bar	14:00-16:00 Seminar prep in the library	16:00-22:00 Part time work in hospitality
Thursday	10:00-12:00 Climate Change and Society Seminar	12:00-14:00 On campus lunch with friends or yoga at the leisure centre	14:00-16:00 University reading in the library	16:00-20:00 Society event- evening lecture or a social roundtable discussion	20:00-22:00 Yoga with friends at home
Friday	10:00-12:00 Dissertation Research Methods Lecture	12:00-14:00 Work on dissertation in Benugo Café on campus	14:00-16:00 On campus lunch with friends	16:00-22:00 Part time work in hospitality
Saturday	10:00-12:00 Volunteering in grassroot movements		12:00-22:00 Part time work in hospitality
Sunday	10:00-12:00 University reading at home	12:00-14:00 Go for a walk and a coffee at Platts fields Market Garden with my friends	14:00-16:00 Create my study timetable for the week ahead	16:00-22:00 Part time work in hospitality		