BACKGROUND

“The program will invite members of the International Confucian Association from Beijing Normal University as well as those other first-class universities at home and abroad, to become lecturers and tutors of our program. The School of Philosophy, BNU is one of the most important centers for philosophy and social science education, as well as for philosophical scientific research in China. In recent years, Philosophy at BNU as the “First-Class” discipline has been ranked 51-100 in QS steadily, and has been assessed as A in the fourth and fifth round of discipline evaluation of the China Ministry of Education. Each major in the School of Philosophy BNU has well-experienced faculty members and strong research capabilities. Our program has gained full support from the Center for Studies of Values and Culture at BNU which is a key research base of humanities and social sciences of the China Ministry of Education.”
