How do groups and workshops help?

A lot of the work of the University of Manchester Counselling and Mental Health Service is done in groups or workshops: working in a group can be the best form of help for some people and some difficulties.

The practitioner you see at your first appointment may suggest you join one of our groups or workshops, or you can ask about this yourself. Workshops are generally one off sessions, psycho educational and skill based. Groups have a more therapeutic element and are over a series of sessions with the same participants each week.

Sometimes people join a group after they have explored some of the underlying issues in individual counselling. Being in a group may then be a further opportunity to practise recognising when ways of thinking or behaving are unhelpful and may be an opportunity to experiment with new ways of thinking etc.

Sometimes people go to groups and workshop instead of having individual sessions. Working in a group is a great way to gain new perspectives and make changes.

People often think that they have to tell all of their deepest thoughts, feelings and secrets to the group. This is not the case – all of our groups are structured and focused on helping you make the changes you want. Each individual decides what, how much, and when they share what is troubling them with the group.

Some of our workshops are more like classes and psycho educational, where you will be able to learn helpful skills.

What are the ground rules for my participation in Mental Health Support Team groups?

Groups are facilitated and set up in a way that means that they are safe, ie the content of the group sessions is confidential; what members talk about or disclose is not discussed outside the group. If a group is to be effective, your commitment to the following is important:

- It is important you try to attend all of the group sessions.
- If you are going to miss a session, please let us know.
- Please try to keep to the times set for the group-particularly the start time.
- Confidentiality is important in all the Mental Health Support Team work.

Moving On Groups (MOG): Support MOG

The Mental Health Support Team also supports a user-led group run by students – usually facilitators are students who have attended one of our groups, had some training and want to continue to meet.

The MOG aims to provide a supportive environment to share your difficulties and find new ways forward.

This group is not a therapy group and can't offer any individual specific help with concerns outside the remit that its group members agree. However, it is a really useful way of continuing the support from other members of the group that you found helpful in the practitioner-led group that you attended.

See our website for further details.
